Primary Race Promises to Be Lively Affair

Many Petitions are Being Circulated for County Office Seekers

Early political activity within the county was spurred this week by the announcement that candidates for county office must file petitions by January 29, 1946. In former years the filing date was about a month later but new laws enacted by the 1944 general assembly provide for the earlier filing date.

Person, Decker Not to Run
Also adding much interest to the pre-campaign political scene is the "wide open" race which is expected to result from the announcement that neither Judge Perry L. Persons, nor Probate Judge Martin C. Decker will file petitions for re-election. Persons, oldest office holder in the county, has held the County judgeship for 36 years, having been elected for nine consecutive terms. Although Persons publicity handout announcing his intention not to compete for the office again stated that he had been elected by a large majority in 1942, Antioch residents will remember the intensive campaign carried out by the Antioch News to defeat him then, and the narrow margin by which he was elected at that time, the vote being 9,384 for Persons and 8,932 for his opponent, Paul Doolen.

Judge Martin C. Decker has held the office of probate judge since the creation of the office in 1921, and gives as his reason for retirement the fact that he is 73 years of age.

Many possible successors for both judges have been mentioned. However no information is available at this time.

Sheriff Fight Looms

Thomas E. Kennedy, chief deputy sheriff and a former sheriff of Lake County, has announced his candidacy for the office of sheriff and is circulating petitions this week. Kennedy served one term as sheriff with considerable success and is expected to campaign with his previous record as ammunition. He is a graduate of the FBI school in Washington, and has received "G" man training from time to time at the school. He has served as chief deputy under Atkinson during the past four years.

Although Kennedy has not announced his intention to ask for a leave of absence from the sheriff's office in order to avoid campaigning at the taxpayers expense, it is expected that he will do so within the next few weeks.

Opposing Kennedy will be Charles R. Rouse, also an employee in the sheriff's office. Rouse, in a letter to John J. Spellman, Chairman of the Lake County Republican Central Committee, says in effect, that "pressure" was brought to bear on him after his announcement of his intention to run for the office and that Sheriff Atkinson finally dismissed him from the staff after trying to dissuade him from making the announcement. Rouse's letter states in part, "It has been put to me that I must either withdraw from the race or lose my pay. Is this the way democracy works? Is this the penalty for competent civic service?"

Political observers who are "in the know" expect several more entrants into the race.

Co. Supt. of Schools Race

A new note was injected into the campaign for County Superintendent of Schools by the circulation of a petition by Marguerite M. Zimmer, Prairie View. Miss Zimmer is a graduate of Eastern Illinois State Teacher's college and has received degrees from Northwestern University and the University of Chicago. She is a former employee of the county superintendent's office, having served for seven years in the office under Wm. C. Petty whom she will oppose in the primary elections. Petty has held the office for 16 years, having been first elected in 1930 and re-elected with little or no opposition since that time.

Since almost three weeks remain before the last day for filing of petitions, it is likely that many more candidates will circulate and file petitions before the deadline. This being the first peacetime campaign for more than four years adds to the belief that it will be lively one.

FOX LAKE BOAT BUILDER PASSES

Lars Gayhart Larson, brother of Harry and William Larson veteran boat builders of Fox Lake, passed away December 28, at his home in Fox Lake. The son of Jacob and Ida Larson, Lars was born December 9, 1878 in Chicago.

Surviving besides William and Harry, are Jacob, Jr., of Fox Lake and Clarence of Milwaukee.

Antioch Township Exceeds Quota By 50% in Bond Drive

That Antioch township exceeded quota by almost fifty percent was revealed this week by Otto S. Klass, local bond drive chairman.

Quotas as set up called for the sale of $25,000 in "E" bonds and $80,000 in all other types. Final figures as furnished by Klass show that $46,725 worth of "E" bonds were sold and $72,640 of all other kinds were sold during the drive ending Dec. 31, 1945.

Dear Friends:
Just a line to let you know that I probably will be on my way or getting ready to come home. And for you to discontinue the news, cause they won't follow me from here. As you probably know no 3rd or 4th class mail is shipped back to the states.

So now I am waiting for the points to drop to 53 and that won't be long (I hope). The rumor is 53 points leave before the first and I hope its true.

I sure have enjoyed reading the news these past 35 months.

Latest rumor 54's and 53's leave this week.

So Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all.

As ever,

Bill Johnson

III. State Assn. of Veterinarians to Hear Jensen

Local Man to Report on Control of Bangs' Disease

Veterinarians from throughout the state will hear Dr. G. W. Jensen, chairman of a special committee to study new methods of brucellosis control among cattle, when he Illinois State Veterinary Medical Association holds its annual meeting in Springfield, January 17 and 18.

Dr. Jensen, considered one of the foremost authorities on the disease, will also report on happenings at the National convention. He was Illinois delegate to the National American Veterinary Medical Convention.

Subjects to be covered at the meeting will include, aside from Bangs' disease control, the use of DDT in veterinary practice, Penicillin as a treatment of Mastitis, the virulence of various poultry diseases and many other related subjects.

The convention will be the first annual meeting of the association since the lifting of gasoline rationing and the wartime regulations limiting size of gatherings. Record breaking attendance is predicted, both because of the new freedom of travel and the importance of subjects to be covered by the practitioners.

Dr. Carol Tossey, who is associated with Dr. Jensen in his veterinary practice here, is also a member of the association.

Discharged Veterans Must Register With Co. Clerk by Mar. 11

Springfield, Ill., Jan. Discharged veterans who were not registered to vote before they entered service have until March 11 to register with their local county clerks. Secretary of State, Edward J. Barrett advised today.

This applies, the Secretary said, to veterans who may not have registered under the permanent registration prior to their entrance into service and also to persons who became of voting age while in the service.

Veterans who changed their permanent address and former members of the women's military services who have changed their names through marriage also were reminded to revise their registration. The deadline for making these changes is March 12.

One exception to the registration requirements for veterans applies to those who will be discharged within sixty days prior to an election. In these cases, Barrett explained, the discharged veteran may cast his vote on election day by making an affidavit to election officials at the polls on election day.

NEWS 1946 SUBSCRIPTION LIST REACHES NEW HIGH

The Antioch News opened 1946 with the greatest number of subscribers ever to be carried on the lists.

This is surprising because of large numbers of servicemen's names which have been removed from the list as the men are returned to their homes. The civilian increase, however, has more than kept up with the decrease thus caused. Naturally we are gratified as it is proof that lake region residents like the kind of newspaper we are trying to give them.

We want to emphasize again that this is your newspaper. We want your help in making it the best possible newspaper. We want you to bring in or phone to this office any item you think is of general interest to our community.

Today's Privilege—*Tomorrow's Opportunity

Much of the conflict and disorganization of the moment has been popularly excused as the "let down" from war. But there are those who cannot let down, and under no circumstances would be excused if they did. The railroads are a pertinent case. For them the war is reaching a terrific transportation climax. More troops are moving right now than at any time during the war—1,100,000 in November, with still more in December, and it's going to be much like that for several months to come.

This time the men are heading home. Every delay is a galling disappointment. Except where it is humanly impossible to avoid, the railroads will not disappoint the veteran on his homeward trip. Railroad people know how the veteran feels. Many of them are waiting for members of their own families to return. They can be counted upon to drive themselves and their equipment to the limit with enthusiasm. It is a rare privilege to have a part in bringing millions of men home after nearly four years of war. And no railroader worth his salt looks upon it as anything other than a privilege.

Even in these hectic days of demobilization and readjustment, the railroads have their eyes fixed on the future, on the time when the battle-weary veteran will no longer be satisfied with just anything on wheels. The release of material which could not be had during the war has enabled them to get started on a large-scale program of improvements, including new locomotives, new and better cars and trains and more of them. Many improvements the public will never see. They will be in technical developments that do not show.

No, the railroads are not among those who have let down. What is more, they obviously have no intention of letting down in the future.

Let the Soldiers Know

A soldier landing in the United States from the South Pacific, after getting his discharge, found thousands of men waiting at the demobilization center to get on trains. It was hard for men who had been away from home two, three and four years or longer, to understand why railroad cars were not immediately available. Most of them did not know that during the whole war period, railroads were prohibited from buying any new equipment. They did not know that the staggering war load which surpassed any transportation job in history, was moved much faster and with fewer cars and engines than was the transportation load during and after the first World War.

Few of the men knew that when the railroads were permitted to place orders for troop-carrying cars after this war ended, strikes held up deliveries. Neither did the men know that for such troop-carrying cars as the railroads have been able to get, strikes delayed the supply of beds and equipment.

It is only fair to state that many of the cases which delay the movement of returning veterans are entirely beyond the control of the railroads.

In November, troop movements across our country totaled 1,300,000, with the number expected to increase. The railroads had to provide 97 percent of all transportation for military personnel traveling under orders. Their biggest job now is getting our soldiers and sailors back home. They hope that when congestion occurs, those who are inconvenienced will understand some of the reasons responsible for delays. And last but not least, the American people, including the families of our armed forces, are demanding traveling space as never before, which often adds to the problem of handling returning veterans promptly.

Sensible Oil Policy

For a long time oil men have said that rigid and artificial price policies toward the oil industry were a barrier to normal development. It has remained for Deputy Petroleum Administrator Ralph Davies to jolt the Office of Price Administration by declaring that price ceilings on oil products are endangering the industry, and stating that oil supplies are large enough to warrant immediate removal of ceilings. He cited a threatened kerosene shortage as an example of how price ceilings may throw oil production out of balance. The low price of kerosene, he said, prompts companies to diminish kerosene production in favor of more profitable gasoline production.

Looking farther into the future, Mr. Davies said the oil industry should be assured of a good price for crude oil at all times. The price must be high enough, he said, that even a small discovery will produce more than a "moderate" return. He pointed out that the risks in oil investment are great and the returns should be commensurate. When the time comes that American oil production needs protection from foreign oil producers, he said, import duties should be established high enough to assure a good crude price, but not so high as to allow American oil companies to become inefficient.

Mr. Davies' remarks are refreshing in their clarity and their soundness. If such policies were adopted by government toward oil and other industries, our nation would be on its road to reconversion and recovery from war demobilization before we knew it.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

ART: "Saw you at the movies last night, Judge. That was quite a weekend that alcoholic went through, wasn't it?"

OLD JUDGE: "Sure was, but I'm afraid most people won't really understand it."

ART: "What do you mean, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Simply this. That poor chap was really a sick man...not just a drunk. Studies by famous psychiatrists and the medical profession show that alcoholism is not caused by a craving for alcohol...it is usually the result of some deep-rooted social, physical or emotional condition. If that fellow had not turned to alcohol for escape, he would have turned to something else."

ART: "Are there many that get in that condition, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Fortunately not. Art. Scientists at a great university have stated that approximately 95% of the people who drink do so sensibly. Only 5% are immoderate at times. In that 5% is the small number known as alcoholics. And the beverage distilling industry which does not want a single person to use its product immoderately, is cooperating fully in the solution of this problem."

The Big Wind

The big wind in Ireland refers to a storm which began January 1, 1839, and raged for two days and nights along the coasts of Ireland and England. It was the most devastating storm in Ireland within the memory of man. Many lives were lost in Dublin and Liverpool, the Irish sea was strewn with wrecks of ships, and hundreds of houses were blown down in Galway, Limerick, Athlone and other places. Much additional damage was caused by fires started and fanned by the gale. The storm made such a deep impression on the people that for a generation it was customary to divide history into two periods—before and after the "big wind."

The law* now says—*YOU CAN'T DRIVE YOUR CAR

IF you should have an accident and lack the money or insurance to cover possible claims that may follow. Here's how this new law works:

If you have an automobile accident which kills or injures any other person or causes over $50 property damage, you must—within 60 days—do one of these things:

1. Show you have Automobile Insurance that covers the accident, or

2. Prove that you have arranged to pay any resulting claims against you, or have been cleared of liability for such claims, or

3. Put up cash or other securities, as required by state authorities, sufficient to cover possible claims, up to as much as $10,000 for death or injury cases, and $1,000 for property damage.

Unless these requirements are met promptly, your license will be suspended and you will be forbidden to use any car in this state.

Your best bet is Hartford Insurance

Hartford's Automobile Liability and Property Damage insurance is tailor-made to fit this new law.

In case of accident, a Hartford policy will give you double protection. It helps you to retain your right to drive. And it will pay—up to its limits—any claims or judgments awarded against you.

If you lose the right to drive your car, it may be a serious inconvenience. If a court judgment strips you of your home and security, it's a catastrophe.

For your own protection, the security of your family, and to safeguard your driving rights, act now to get Hartford Automobile Liability and Property Damage insurance. The value is great—the cost reasonable! Here are the rates:

LIBRARY NEWS

(By Marion Rigby, Librarian)
The Library will be closed on Wednesday afternoons until further notice.

Daphne du Maurier has all the skill of the born storyteller, and her latest novel "The King's General" is worthy of her art. Sir Richard Granville, Royalist general in the service of Charles I of England, is a figure of romance, especially in the eyes of Honor Harrington, who loves him but cannot marry him. Through her memories, we learn of the fury of Civil War, of siege and secret passages, sacrifice and intrigue, and of a love that adversity only deepened.

"Waiting in the Night" is the story of a series of cloak and dagger adventures told by saboteur-commander George Millar. In constant danger, and often with little equipment, his group of Maquis wrecked trains and sabotaged equipment aided by the nameless patriots of France.

Maud Sabin spent Wednesday in Chicago.

Lt. Don Berkheiser, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Ryan, arrived in Antioch Wednesday, to join his family who have made their home here for the past several months. Lt. Berkheiser served in the armed forces for the past three and one half years, spending some time in the Pacific.

Dust One

By ANEL C. JOHNS
McClure Newsaver Syndicate,
WNU Features.

THE strawberries were shipped in early. They were flat, heart-shaped. Pinkish red. The centers came out with the stem if Pattie wasn't careful.

Pattie shouldn't have bought them. But she couldn't resist. She had always brought home the first on the market since that time just after her marriage when Philip came home, smelling of gasoline. There was always hard grease on his hands and sometimes on his pug-nosed face. He stopped at the table, always, for a preview of what was cooking and said, "Shortcake! Spring must be here. Spring, when young man's fancy seriously turns thoughts of love if he's married to a gorgeous dame like one Pattie."

But that had been four years ago, and strawberries always reminded her of the days Philip went away in the mornings and came back to her in the evenings. Never too tired to dance.

Pattie loved the way they moved in unison. Philip holding her a little tight, saying, "You're like the music, Baby. You make me know that, if I never have anything more, I've got everything right now. For you I clean carburetors, patch flats. Pump gas. Pour oil. There's a ritzy dame comes into the station about twice a week. She's a looker! But, Baby, you outlook her even in curlers and cold cream."

Did Philip still feel like that? That she outlooked the lookers who danced with him at the USO clubs on his week-end leaves? The lookers who worked in canteens, doing their bit for the boys? The lookers who flirted?

He was sent with his crew to England and no doubt met new people with strange ways.

Pattie was glad she had been a camp wife. That she had followed her Philip around, put up in a jail for two weeks in Georgia because there were no rooms available. Even slept in the back seat of the car at a filling station when she arrived in a town too late to find quarters.

She was glad that she had been with him the night he was shipped. The sergeant had let her stay. She and four other wives who had little to say that they couldn't tell with the pressure of their cold fingers.

Philip had looked into her face, upturned in the moonlight, until the tears stood at her lashes and her throat hurt.

"You're beautiful, Baby. Even now, I hate going before he gets here but I can't be the chooser in this game. Be sure to send me a cable. It'll be tough over there, waiting. I know it'll be tougher here."

It was horrible back in their house alone. She tried having the wife of one of Philip's pals live with her. But the girl was morbid. She died on horrors, especially those of the war.

Philip had said, "Don't sit around fretting about me. Worry is bad. I'll take care of myself. If I see a blockbuster coming at me I'll run like the deuce. I want to come home and find you just the same."

Well, she wasn't the same. She'd been in the maternity ward without him to stand by. She'd come through the measles and a hand that little Philip burned when he pulled the percolator off the stove. The neighbors helped her when she had a bad appendix that the doctor finally removed.

Philip said, "Don't ever forget me, Baby. I won't forget you. The going will never be so rough that can happen. I'll think of you every day. All day. And dream of you at night. Everything I do will be for you and the little one."

But all of that had been so long ago. She couldn't bring Philip back as she used to. At first she could make him sit in his favorite chair. Could hear his voice above the radio talking without words. Just the rumble of his deep voice. But she couldn't hear his voice any more. She had forgotten how he looked sitting behind the evening paper.

Suddenly her hands trembled. She crushed a luscious berry between her fingers. She was frightened. If she couldn't recall here, where Philip had been, how could he remember her, where she had never been?

How could he keep in mind their simple pleasures when everyone worked to entertain him and thousands like him? Time blots out everything.

She had tried to keep her hold on Philip. She had sent him pictures of the baby every month. Anniversary pictures, she called them. And snapshots of herself too. Being careful to look her best; careful to smile with the wrinkles in her nose about which Philip had teased her.

Little Philip came in from outdoors. His pug nose was red with the cold of early spring. His hands were smeared with a red sucker and there was a ring around his rosy mouth where he had licked the stickiness. His cap was gone and his reddish hair was every which way.

"Can I have one, Muzzer? Dust one?" the little boy pleaded, standing on tiptoe to see better.

Pattie looked down. She had seen that face before. But it was older.

She gave him the biggest berry she could find. "And one for Dad," she whispered.

Income Form Filing Explained--Campbell

January 15 Tax Quiz
Nigel D. Campbell, Collector of Internal Revenue Chicago

- Suppose I am one of the taxpayers who must file a Declaration of Estimated Tax on January 15, how do I estimate my tax for last year? Estimate your income for 1945 and then figure the tax by the same method you use to compute your exact tax on your annual return.
- Are there any special worksheets or tables to help me estimate? You don't need any special sheets. Use a copy of the regular return blank, Form 1040.
- If I use the regular return blank, Form 1040, to figure my tax, can I file that instead of an estimate form? If you fill it out like a regular return and use exact figures (not estimates), you can file Form 1040 and it will serve both as the declaration due now and as the return due March 15.
- Part of my tax bill is paid through the tax deductions my employer makes from my paycheck. Do I have to pay the estimate tax on top of that? You pay only the difference between the withholding tax and your total tax.
- If I am changing an estimate and have already paid some installments, how do I take credit for those payments? If filing Form 1040-ES, write the total amount of your payments on line 5. If filing Form 1040, write the amount on line 7(B), page 1.
- Suppose my estimate last March was far too high, and I have already paid more than my correct tax for 1945. Can I get a refund of the difference? Yes, by filing your regular return and showing the amount of overpayment in line 9, page 1, Form 1040.

National Teachers' Exams to Be Held Jan. 9, 16, at U. of Ill.

Applications of those wishing to take the annual National teacher examinations should be submitted immediately, Examiner F. H. Finch of the University of Illinois College of Education announced today.

Applicants who wish to take the examinations in Urbana are asked to write immediately to Finch, who said the last day for receiving applications without payment of a special fee is Saturday, January 12.

In administering the sixth annual examination, scheduled for February 9 and 16, the University of Illinois is co-operating with the American Council on Education. Other examination centers for Illinois teachers will be maintained at Augustana college and at Evanston township high school.

The practice of requiring applicants for teaching positions to furnish scores from these examinations as part of their credentials has become widespread, according to Doctor Finch, and many Illinois schools are planning to make use of the examination results.

BUTTER! BUTTER! WHERE'S THE BUTTER?

Removing the point requirements from the purchase of butter has not made that product any easier to find. On the contrary, most housewives are finding their favorite spread harder than ever to get. This scarcity is causing those homemakers to ask what has become of the butter.

The answer is not hard to find. The removal by the Government of restrictions on fluid milk sales sent consumption of that product, already at an all-time high, to still greater levels. At the same time the removal of restrictions on sales of fluid cream and ice cream sent consumption of these products soaring and made still further inroads upon the amount of milk and cream available for butter manufacture.

In October only eighty-nine million pounds of factory-made butter were made in the United States as compared with one hundred million pounds in the same month of 1944, and over one hundred thirty-six million pounds in October of 1941. Even though milk production is at the highest levels in history, the demands for milk, ice cream and fluid cream, all of which return a higher price to the farmer, are so high as to leave less milk for the manufacturing of butter than at any time in the past twenty-five years.

Relief in Sight
The seasonal low point in fluid milk production for the year is passing. The total amount of milk produced will increase gradually until next June, and with it butter production is expected to increase to nearly twice as much in the month of June as in November.

Some Like Them Bold

By ARTHUR M. YORK
McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Features.

WALTER GATES sat straight as a rod, although it was nearly four hours since he had started waiting to see the managing editor. He was poised hopefully on the edge of the chair, as if he expected each minute might bring back the copy boy with the news that Mr. Pool was ready to see him about the reporting job.

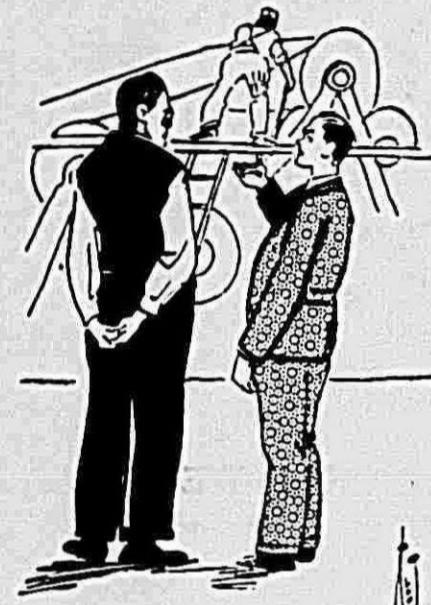

But, instead, the photographer came around the corner for the fourth time from the direction of the clacking city room. Walt stopped him. "You'll never get to see the old man sitting here, Matey," the photographer informed him. "He hates appointments. Funny that way."

"Then how does anyone ever see him?" Walt inquired. His forehead was furrowed deeply, up to the line of his thick blond hair. He explained he had had a little reporting experience before Army service. Now that he was discharged, he wanted to get back into newspaper work. He shifted his weight from one foot to the other, proving to himself again that the artificial legs they pass out these days are no handicap.

The photographer stepped closer to Walt and spoke softly from the corner of his mouth. He suggested Walt break in on the chief. "But don't let on you know who he is," the photographer schemed. "I know a guy who got a job that way, only he didn't know he was talking to Pool, see?"

"But I couldn't do that," Walt protested.

"What's to stop you? Pool's a quiet guy, but he likes 'em bold."

"... But I think the paper is too neutral."

As Walter descended to the pressroom where the chief was, the acrid odor of the etching acid reached him. He had always thought it displeasing. But now he recognized it as part of the nostalgia every enthusiastic reporter has for a newspaper office. It was akin to the unkempt appearance of city rooms and the crippled typewriters about which the reporters always complain.

Walt casually observed the blur of newsprint threading through the presses and, pretending he belonged there, from the corner of his eye he hunted for Mr. Pool. All the men wore the handmade boxlike caps which most pressmen fashion for themselves from a piece of newsprint paper—all except one.

Walt looked at him more closely. He stood with his hands behind his back, doing nothing but observe moaning machines. He fitted exactly the photographer's description of Mr. Pool. He wore large black-rimmed glasses and his graying hair was parted far to one side. Walt strolled casually up to him and they watched the presses together. After waiting for Mr. Pool to speak first, Walt ventured: "There's no end to the excitement of seeing the paper go to press, is there?" He had to shout to be heard. The man merely glanced at Walt coolly over the dark rims of his glasses.

"I like the Post," Walt resumed. "It's a good solid paper. Lot of tradition behind it. But . . . here's where he took the photographer's cue. He searched self-consciously for ideas that were not his own. ". . . But I think the paper is too neutral. It never gets excited about anything. Know what I mean?"

There was still no remark from Mr. Pool.

"It ought to have definite policies. Ought to guide the thinking of its readers on important topics."

"Yeah?" The man looked Walt sternly up and down.

"I think the Post needs new blood," Walt went on. "Young blood." He considered giving himself as an example, but decided against being too obvious. "Of course it's the men at the top who count where policies are concerned. Perhaps the Post needs a new managing editor." He was sorry as soon as the bold words had passed his lips, at his comments had brought the man's head around with a jerk.

But now, with Mr. Pool glaring at him in apparent anger, Walt could only add weakly, "What do you think?"

"I think you're batty as a loon." Walt felt his cheeks burn. He sought some way to escape as gracefully as possible. "But I wouldn't know," the man added. He brought his hands from behind his back and placed a boxlike paper cap on his head. "I'm only a pressman myself."

A "Look at the Books"

OR

"A Finger in the Pie"?

Which is the UAW-CIO really after? Is it seeking facts—or new economic power? Does it want to know things—or run things?

These questions concern you as well as General Motors.

For years the facts about General Motors have been made public.

In spite of this, the UAW-CIO demands a chance to look at our books, with the hint that we could meet Union demands "if the truth were really known."

We have firmly declined to recognize this as a basis for bargaining:

1. The Full Facts are Published

How much General Motors takes in each year—how much it pays employees—how much it pays to stockholders—how much it pays in taxes—how much net profit we make—and many other facts are plainly stated in annual reports and quarterly reports.

These are broadcast to 425,000 stockholders from coast to coast—sent to newspapers and libraries. Additional copies are free for the asking.

2. All Figures are Thoroughly Checked

Every General Motors annual statement is audited by outside auditors. Similar figures are filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission.

Does the UAW-CIO honestly believe that General Motors would or could deceive these experts?

3. Basis of Collective Bargaining Is Defined

The Wagner Act lays down the rules for collective bargaining. These cover such areas as rates of pay, hours of work, working conditions.

No mention is made of earnings, prices, sales volume, taxes and the like. These are recognized as the problems of management.

4. Something New has been Added

The obvious fact is that the UAW-CIO has gone beyond its rights under the law—and is reaching not for information but for new power—not for a look at past figures, but for the power to sit in on forecasting and planning the future.

A "look at the books" is a clever catch phrase intended as an opening wedge whereby Unions hope to pry their way into the whole field of management.

It leads surely to the day when Union bosses, under threat of strike, will demand the right to tell what we can make, when we can make it, where we can make it, and how much we must charge you—all with an eye on what labor can take out of the business, rather than on the value that goes into the product.

5. This Threatens All Business

If the Union can do this in the case of General Motors, it can do it to every business in this land of ours.

Is this just imagination? Union spokesmen have said, "The Union has stated time after time that this issue is bigger than just an ordinary wage argument, that it is bigger than the Corporation and bigger than the Union."

For Labor Unions to use the monopolistic power of their vast membership to extend the scope of wage negotiations to include more than wages, hours and working conditions is the first step toward handing the management of business over to the Union bosses.

We therefore reject the idea of a "look at the books" not because we have anything to hide but because the idea itself hides a threat to GM, to all business, and to you, the public.

"MORE AND BETTER THINGS FOR MORE PEOPLE"

Week-End Catch

By LOWELL JONES
McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Features.

"OH, STOP laughing and help me get loose!" Sue wailed as she looked up into the mirthful eyes of the stranger.

"I didn't mean to make fun of you, but you do look queer stuck there in a foot of water," he said, unfastening the seat of Sue's masculine trousers from the barbed wire fence running out into the lake. He helped her up and, as their hands touched, neither spoke. "You must be Pop Sorensen's daughter and you're seining minnows for the week-end tourist rush. You don't believe all that witchcraft about thunderstorms, boat colors and such foolishness, do you?" he asked.

"I have faith in what Dad says. Our guests never go home empty-handed and they think he's the best we around here," she replied. "Well, your dad has scientific competition now," he warned.

She gathered up the two pills of live minnows and started back to Piny Point. She reproached herself for listening to the stranger's talk, but there was something about his calm assurance and the gentle way he had helped her to her feet that held her interest. "There's no way of getting around fisherman's luck—no new scientific tricks we don't know about, are there, Dad?" she asked at dinner.

"You're darned tootin' there ain't. Say, you haven't been talkin' to that new guide, fresh out of the marines, feller named Ted Holbrook, have

"I'm warnin' you to keep away from Susan."

"you?" Sue felt the color rush to her cheeks.

"Ah ha, I thought so. Well, see it don't happen again," he warned. "The boy's been farin' pretty well, even ignorin' all the signs a feller in his right mind ought to heed. But it's all fisherman's luck."

But Ted's luck didn't change and, as the word spread that he was sending his guests home with full strings, Pop Sorensen lost a lot of business. On week-ends when Sue went out on the lake, she could see Ted and his guests in Ted's new white boats and more than once her heart stood still when she knew he was watching her across the still water. One evening he appeared at the Sorensen cabin.

"Howdy, Miss Sue," he said. "We haven't met much lately and I was wondering if you'd like to go to the dance with me Tuesday."

"Oh, Ted, you shouldn't have come. I'd love to go with you, but Dad . . ." Just then Pop Sorensen stormed into the room.

"I'm warnin' you to keep away from Susan and off my property, young feller," he roared. "Anyone who's been sayin' the things around town you have isn't welcome on Piny Point."

"See here," Ted proposed, "we can prove who's right and decide about the dance at the same time I bet I send my week-end guests home with more fish than you do. Pop Sorensen. And if I win, Susan goes to the dance with me."

Saturday was gray at first and Ted's party went into the lead as folks all around Chippewa Lake anxiously awaited the outcome. Later the sun came out. During the afternoon Pop Sorensen's luck changed and his boats began to fill with bass and sunfish.

As they compared totals after dinner Ted's party trailed by ten. "It's just what I was sayin', young feller, your beginner's luck has changed. You got to abide by the tried and true rules to come out ahead in the long run," Pop chided. Ted looked around for Sue but she was nowhere to be seen.

"And if you're huntin' fer Susan, I don't know where she went. You won't be seein' her after tomorrow's haul is counted, anyway," Pop added.

Pop Sorensen, sure his fisherman's luck had changed the day before, was dumbfounded to learn at dusk that Ted was ahead two sunfish in the two-day total. "That's a pretty slim margin," Ted observed as he stood with Sue on the Piny Point dock. "There must be something in old-fashioned fisherman's luck, after all. But we'll never leave anything to chance again, you and I," he said, taking her hands in his as she looked fondly up at him. "Say, what's this on your hands, Sue?"

"Oh, that . . . that's just some green paint that wouldn't come off," she answered. "Your white boats looked so terribly bright when the sun came out yesterday, and painting even the bottoms after dark is a messy job."

Why the Dancing Bear Clawed His Pal, the Keeper

Weird Tale Emanates From Underground; Puts on Act to Fool Nazis.

AMSTERDAM.—The true story of why the famous dancing bear at the Rotterdam zoo suddenly turned on his keeper, threw him to the ground and clawed and bit him has just been told. One of the weirdest tales yet to emanate from the under-

The director of the Rotterdam zoo was Erie Klant who took the name of Hagenbeck when his mother, after the death of his father, married into the famous circus family.

Because he had lived in Germany since childhood the Nazis in 1940 ordered Klant into the German army. Twice he was saved by city officials who said his services were essential. But they warned him that if the Germans asked a third time they would probably have to release him.

Klant had a daring idea. He arranged a special matinee at the zoo. Everything went smoothly until the famous act of the dancing bear. Klant had worked with the bear for years. It was his favorite performing animal.

Something Happened. But this time something happened. The tame, usually affectionate bear turned on Klant. It threw him to the ground, clawed and bit him on the foot.

"It was the most difficult act I ever performed," Klant said. "The bear did not want to bite me. I had to make him. I also had to make him stop at the right moment. That could have been difficult but my bear was well-trained. An actor could not have done better."

On his way to the hospital Klant deliberately dug into his wounds with an indelible pencil. The lacerations became infected and for months he remained in the hospital. Finally the Germans sent him to a military hospital in Amsterdam.

He managed to stay there for several months more by another ruse.

Batts Against Wall.

He wrapped his head in a towel and beat it against a wall until he lapsed into unconsciousness. The Germans were unable to figure out the strange high fever and apparent concussion.

Finally, he escaped from the hospital. For eight months he hid with his wife Mia in the attic of a house. Because it would have been dangerous if the neighbors had heard a man's voice he spoke only in whispers. When he finally got out, his voice was almost too hoarse to be understood.

Now he is going back into animal training—but as Erie Klant, rather than Erie Hagenbeck.

Woman's Call Gets State Police in Another State

COLUMBUS, N. J. — Mrs. Alfred Heck, a farmer's wife, said she had quite a time getting state police at Columbus to report a feller missing from her farm in nearby Springfield township.

Trooper Joseph Lyons said Mrs. Heck told him she asked the operator to get her state police at Columbus. She got a sergeant who asked her where she lived. Mrs. Heck told him at Chambers corner and Hancock road on route 29.

"Lady," the sergeant asked, "where are you calling from?" "Springfield township, New Jersey," Mrs. Heck answered.

"This is state police at Columbus, Ohio," he said.

Boy Hung by Toes, Tied Naked, Brutally Beaten

DUNDEE, SCOTLAND.—Twelve-year-old Norman Wilson testified in High court that his foster parents hung his 10-year-old brother, Harry, by his toes from a clothes wringer, pulled his lips with pliers, tied him to a chair and beat him, and locked him in a dark cupboard.

The foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Walton, are charged with cruelty to the two boys, who were put in their care last year by the Fife county council. Both deny the charge.

Norman said that on one occasion both boys were beaten "for saying the same prayer over and over again."

"We only knew one prayer," he told the court.

Shortens Name Formerly Apostolopanagiotopoulos

ST. PAUL, MINN.—Seaman Paul Panagiotopoulos, 21, St. Paul, had such a good time celebrating victory when he was taken to police headquarters for the night.

"What's your name?" asked Police Lt. Frank Kennedy before releasing Paul.

"Seaman Panagiotopoulos," he answered.

"Why don't you shorten it?" Kennedy asked.

"I did," said the sailor. "It used to be Paul Apostolopanagiotopoulos."

Clear Drains
Introduction of copper sulphate into sewers or drains partially blocked by tree roots may clear the obstruction. There must be flow of water enough to bring the chemical in contact with the roots or the treatment will not be effective. Copper sulphate should not be placed in lines which have metal traps because the metal will be corroded. Two or three pounds of the chemical is used at a time, and the treatment can be repeated when required.
